Cancer Dominant: Caring, nurturing personality, and you show it in the way you share information and knowledge with others – this is the sign of the student/teacher. However you can be prone to fanaticism, believing in various philosophies largely due to comfort and familiarity rather than based on logic and objectivity. Despite your thirst for knowledge there can be a resistance to beliefs outside of your sphere of comfort.

Psych. Aspect	Interpretation
Ven-Jup	This aspect indicates a potential for carelessness and indulgence. You are outgoing and personable when things go your way, but you do so often expect things to, and that could be the problem. You are capable of appearing generous when it suits your agenda, then withdrawing it when it no longer does. You may exaggerate your attractiveness in both personal and business relationships, partly because you are never very sure if others will meet you halfway. You can be drawn to social contacts, including friends and romantic interests, from whom you feel you can learn things, but may withdraw when you don't feel that you are learning any more, complaining of a plateau. Tendency to overspend on indulgences, especially when in social/friend settings, and also to spend on anything that improves knowledge, including courses and travel.
Mars-Nep	Compulsive desires and an attraction to glamour and fantasy may dominate your approach to masculinity and sexual desire, and cloud your perspective about what you really want. In time you learn to become suspicious of the motives of others, as you may have experienced deception on several occasions before, but perhaps not acknowledging that your expectations of others had not been defined or realistic. It will be useful to evaluate how you depend on others to make you feel 'special' and how this may open you to vulnerability to deception and falseness. Tendency to idealise knowledge and teachers. Be careful of the potential that you may sometimes bend the truth of facts just to have things fit into your comfort zone and philosophy.
